Dear A&T, Dear A&T, a monument indeed, Around thy base with grateful hearts behold thy students kneel. We bless the power that gave thee birth to help us in our need, We'll ever strive while here on earth all loyalty to yield.

With joy, with joy, dear A&T, thy students turn from thee To spread thy trophies year by year from Dare to Cherokee.

Dear A&T, Dear A&T, the signet thou shalt be, Set by our great old commonwealth, proud boaster of the free She'd have the record of her worth on granite not inscribed Nay, let the children of her birth proclaim it by their lives.

Dear A&T, Dear A&T, henceforth our aim shall be, By precepts wise and deeds more sure to bless the State through thee; The arts of industry to wield against an idle foe
A harvest rich from ripened fields or what thy students sow.

SIMPLY UNFORGETTABLE

"Simply unforgettable, are those memories that will stay with you forever, the good the bad and the ugly, the things that have molded you into the person you are now and who you will become in the future."

"The 90's, a time period most of us remember very well, was a time rich with vibrant colors, wild patterns and the best TV shows. It represents the years where we, the class of 2013, lived freely and without a care in the world. We dedicate the book to that decade, those Simply Unforgettable years."

"Simply Unforgettable is supposed to serve as a reminder of what it means to be a 90's kid. From fighting with your siblings about which color Power Ranger you were, to blowing the dust out of your Super Nintendo cartridge. Class of 2013 we are the beginning of the 90's era. Enjoy!"

"The 90's were filled with unique fashion, awesome television shows, great music, wonderful newborns and future Aggies, and so much more. Nothing was too complex; times were just Simply Unforgettable."

ORIENTATION

By Richard Bouldin

Every summer newly admitted students and their parents come together for two days to attend orientation. The first day starts with students moving into the dorms where they stay overnight, followed by an introduction of the orientation student leaders, and important people here on the campus. The days are filled with fun, but are also very informative. With multiple sessions held at various locations throughout the campus, students learn about the ins and outs of NC A&T. During the information sessions, students were able to ask questions and get answers from people here on campus. Students were also able to talk to various departments from NC A&T's seven schools and colleges, as well as, campus organizations. After the information sessions students were able to mix and mingle in the student union with a student mixer full of dancing, food and fun. The second day of orientation wrapped up the events and allowed, students to have fun with the orientation student leaders. Students ended orientation by meeting with their academic advisors, completing class registration, signing up for Aggie alerts, and making sure that when August came around they were ready to start the school year.

WELCOME WEEK

By Raven Davis

Welcome Week was a jump start into the school year. The first week of school is a good time to get out and meet new people and also hang out with old friends. Events such as a hypnotist and comedy show were amongst the fun programs hosted on campus. At the hypnotist show the host called students on stage and required them to do entertaining things such as a dance competition and squirt themselves with water bottles. Welcome Week also gave students a chance to check out organizations they would like to be a part of. The Organization Fair allowed new and old students to see what each organization had to offer. This was a big day for organizations and often times they gain a lot of members from the organization fair. There were a lot of venders providing free snacks and snow cones. Towards the end of the fair there was a Greek step show. "Overall this was a good welcome week, it's always something new each year, the org fair was cool especially with the music , everyone was just chillin' " said Collin Glover, a Sophomore JOMC student. As old students enjoyed another welcome week new students had a chance to experience "the Best Welcome Week Ever."

By Kelyn Greene

The NC A&T cross-country team, led by Head Coach Joel Pearson, had a very impressive season. The cross-country team was determined and hardworking, which landed them fourth place in the MEAC cross-country championship. Saeed Kris Jones from Winton, NC said "I love the spirit of competition that comes with the sport. Victory is a great feeling, but a hard fought race doesn't always guarantee a win. On days like those it's just fun to be out there on the track." The team worked hard practicing, and conditioning themselves in order to have a successful season. The girls' team took home the second place award at the Newport Invitational and also success off the track, with two seniors making the academic honors list. The team ended the season strong. The girls came in third place in the ELON Invitational and the Christopher Newport Invitational.

Compared to the 5-6 record the Aggie Football team claimed for the 2011-2012 season, the team ended this year's season with a couple of more wins under their belt. "We had a good season this year. There is always room for improvement. We look forward to next year and hopefully a championship season," says Marlowe Wood, an Aggie running back from Bowie, Maryland. The football team was defeated by Coastal Carolina, Morgan State, Delaware State, and Bethune-Cookman. However, they won two more games than last year finishing the season with a 7-4 record. Head Coach Rod Broadway said, "I'm tired of getting my butt kicked," and that was proven this year, as it was the Aggies first winning season since 2003. The most exciting game of the season was during homecoming when the team had a great win over Norfolk State, 30-9. Most importantly, our football team is improving and we Aggies will be cheering them on every step of the way.

Although they were not as successful as they hoped, the team gave it one-hundred and ten percent to pull out three wins during the 2012-2013 season. Every win was exciting for them as it allowed them bond. Since the team is made up of mostly freshmen, playing on the college level was something new for them. "We improve on our skills and we have done things we haven't done before here at A&T," says Ian Thomas, a Sophomore Journalism student from Richmond, Virginia. The team will stay positive with hopes of having a winning season next year.

CORONATION

Fire and Ice, A New Age of Royalty was the theme for the 2012 coronation. The special occasion that starts off the homecoming celebrations, was presented in a circus atmosphere with its own ringmaster, Gogo Lomo-David, to host the show. Before the ceremony began, the audience and special guests were welcomed by Dr. Harold L. Martin, NC A&T's Chancellor, and all the kings and queens of the on campus student organizations, were introduced and seated. While being introduced, the student organization couples entered the stadium doing a traditional African ceremonial dance while the name of their organization was announced. After the seating of the Royal Court, and final walk of the former Mister and Miss North Carolina A&T State University 2011-2012, the Aggie Big Top Dancers initiated the ceremony with a memorable African dance.

The year-long reign for Mister and Miss North Carolina A&T State University, Jordan T. Brunson and Jasmine N. Gurley, has come to an end and the beginning of Reginald Johnson and Catherine Hamlin's journey had just begun. No royal festivity would be complete without entertainment for the king, queen and guests. After the initial crowning of Mister and Miss A&T, circus performers captivated the audience with death defying tricks. The juggler, The Spectacular Spinning Morgan Stilt Walker, impressed everyone with his undeniable equilibrium skills, while the trapeze performers, the Aggie Aerialist, mesmerized guests with graceful hanging acrobatic stunts. The Aggie Aerialist exited and amazed the audience with a beautiful display of strength and beauty as she entangled herself in white satin clothes hanging from the ceiling.

The ceremony came to a close with open ended special tributes from both the king and queen, followed by open welcoming and congratulations from family members and friends.

GOSPEL SHOW

There is no other contender that could outperform NC A&T's own students led a glorious praise ceremony in the Corbett Gym Monday night October 22, 2012. Dressed in black, white and purple, also accompanied by beautiful praise dancers, the choir uplifted the audience with an out of this world energetic performance, and that was just the beginning. Next on stage was Tye Tribbett and the Greater Anointing gospel group that sang their own well known songs like "No Way" and "Victory." The audience praised and shouted with excitement as Tye and his award winning group sang praises to the Almighty. Donald Lawrence and the Tri-City Singers dominated the stage and kept the crowds' energy going with praise and worship and ended the concert by leaving the crowd in light spirits. This year's Homecoming Gospel Concert left Aggies wanting more and looking forward to next year's Homecoming Gospel Concert.

COMEDYSHOW

By Raven Davis

Some people were skeptical that the comedy show wouldn't produce a large crowd like the previous years because of the lineup, but they were wrong. Corbett Sports Center was packed and Aggie Pride was in full effect. The host Tone X, brought humor to the stage throughout the show, while attempting to get the crowd to follow him on Twitter so he could be considered "famous." The first to take the stage was Red Grant who required a lot of participation from the crowd. After a specific gesture he required the crowd to make certain sound effects. Next to take the stage was Bruce Bruce, an Atlana native. He made jokes about his weight and gave out about ten shirts to the crowd. One of the audience members was even willing to slide down the banister to get hers. Before Deeray Davis took the stage, the host, Tone X, warned the audience to not walk in front of the stage because they would be made fun of. Deeray Davis talked about his childhood, growing up with a feminine cousin, and his mother's boyfriends trying to chastise him. He also talked about his eleven year old daughter and all of her smart comebacks. All three comedians made fun of an audience member who was wearing an old school purple suit. Bruce Bruce referred to it as a "Civil Rights Movement" suit. Kelyn Green, a NC A&T Sophomore, majoring in architectural engineering, recalls laughing so hard she couldn't breathe, she said she loved the roar of laughter that swept through Corbett Sports Center.

FASHIONSHOW

By Raven Davis

This year the homecoming fashion show started off with a twist. It usually begins every year with Couture Productions, but this year, VERGE Modeling Troupe opened the show and they came out with a bang. As they strutted across the stage, they took the audience back through different decades with the theme, "Fashion Apocalypse." Every year during the intermission, there is a catwalk competition for homecoming tickets. This year it may have been the highlight of the show. The winner even earned a nick name "Beetle Juice," due to his fashionable outfit's resemblance to the popular character. The second troupe to perform was Couture Production, and they let it be known that they were back with their theme "Return to the Throne." Couture dancers and Word Sectors of Couture, entertained the crowd by dancing and singing to Tyler the Creator and Kayne West. The models had the crowd on the edge of their seats with their fashion forward attire. The show was fantastic and entertaining, no different from the previous years. "It was fantastic and consistent, the head snaps were on point, crisp and sharp moves!" mentioned NC A&T Sophomore, Alexis McIntyre.

Excitement was at an all-time high as the beginning of The Greatest Homecoming On Earth finally arrived. The Pep Rally set the tone for the rest of homecoming week, the host encouraged students to get up and dance as they represented their class and hometowns, seeing which group could get the most hype. Everyone in Corbett participated in the wave, spreading the energy throughout the building. The seniors were hype, for their last chance to enjoy the Greatest Homecoming on Earth Pep Rally before becoming alumni. "The Pep Rally for Greatest Homecoming On Earth 2013 was the best one we had in my four years at A&T. It was extremely hype, the entertainment was a plus and the host kept the spirit flowing" says Janae Crockett, a Finance major from Forestville, Maryland. There was continuous entertainment, including a singing competition which Radelia Harrison, a sophomore Biology student from Marlton, NJ won with her performance of, "And I'm Telling You" by Jennifer Holliday. Corbett Sports Center was jammed packed as Aggies anticipated the surprise performer, Mykko Montana who performed his new hit, "Do It" as the crowd went crazy.

Put on by NC A&T's finest Fraternities and Sororities, the homecoming Step Show stomped out last year's event by presenting fresh visually innovative performances with themes and videos at the start of each act. Iota Phi Theta took audiences into the world of Willy Wonka and imitated the well-known Oompa Loompas. The Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Inc. came dressed to impress in slacks and ties with a rising comedian theme. Aggies reached a record of 16-16 after the homecoming game win. This was the first homecoming win with since 2001. "This was only one game, but homecoming is a lot better when you come away with the win," coach Rod Broadway commented after the game. Alumni played a big role at the game as they were on the field cheering and dancing with the Golden Delight like old times. "It was a great experience to perform with women who came before you, it was like a big reunion" said Tasha McCaskiel, a Junior Public Relations student from Charlotte, NC. Students and alumni both enjoyed the half time performance in which the band entertained the crowd and performed a mixture of old school songs. If you expected to have a seat arriving early was a must, "I arrived a little over a hour early to save seats for my friends and I and it was still difficult, but we made it work", says Imani Mitchell from Brooklyn, New York. Despite the lack of seats, Aggie Pride filled the stadium as people mingled, danced to the band's tunes and enjoyed the football team's victory.

As the family got together at their lake house, which had been in the family for many years, everyone was affected by the deteriorating condition of Reverend Dupree. Expanding horizons and exploring new cultures, is a learning and growing experience for anyone that decides to take on the challenge. NC A&T gave students a glimpse into the world of travel and studying abroad by having an International Education Week. The journey started with an international Beverage Social in the NACB, where Aggies socialized over different drinks from all over the world, followed by a panel discussion. The next day students had an opportunity to talk about their experiences in different countries such as Canada, Ghana, and Greece. During the Orgullo Aggie: Aggie Pride in Latin America, James Griffin, an NC A&T employee and grad student working on his Master's, shared his experiences while studying in Brazil; which was a dream that he felt was out of reach. However, with the guidance and assistance of the Office of International Programs, he was able to live out his dream and shared his adventures with the audience through a memorable PowerPoint presentation. Marquita Johns, a Senior Psychology major, also talked about her voyage to Costa Rica and how it changed her view of the world. Claire Benton, majoring in Secondary Math and Education, shared her journey to the Dominican Republic. To end the international festivities and to start off the holiday season, international students were invited to celebrate and learn about American holidays and traditions and at the same time, share their own cultural traditions with their fellow students at the Annual Multicultural Thanksgiving Dinner. Alanna Goddard, a Senior, native of Trinidad hosted the annual Multicultural Thanksgiving Dinner in hopes of expanding the variety of students participating in the international events and programs on campus.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

By Raven Davis

November 6, 2012, was a big day in America's history. It was a day that every Aggie who was on campus will remember. President Obama made history again, but during the election watch party students were on the edge of their seat. Mitt Romney had the lead in the beginning, and it seemed as if he was too far ahead for Obama to catch up. As the votes came in the lead became larger and larger. There was a sound of agony among students who needed Obama to win, in order to guarantee they would be able to continue their education. The election took a turn in Obama's favor when he won all 55 electoral votes in California. There was a loud cheer in Stallings hall when Obama was announced the winner in each state. Sophomore Kevin Pewitt, from Cleveland Ohio, said, "I was ecstatic and excited, it is such an important election because it impacts us not only as people but college students." Kristopher Dennis from High Point, NC, recited a rap he created during a commercial break, stating how he needed Obama to win or he would be forced to drop out. He also expressed how he felt as if Romney didn't care about him or his people. During commercials, everyone in Stallings "turned up" to the latest music but as soon as the election came on, everyone was tuned in. The election was a big one for many Aggies because Obama is on their side when it comes to financial aid and staying in school. The election was predicted to be a long one but Obama won by a land slide, cutting the election short. It was known, that Obama was re elected president before midnight. When the good news was announced, it was pandemonium all throughout Aggie Land. Students were outside of dorms cheering and students in the election party made their way to the reflection pool and some students jumped in, in 36 degree weather. Aggies celebrated well past midnight.

The Lady Aggies Basketball team this season went 22-10 marking it the fourth time in six seasons they finished with 20 wins or more. More highlights of the season consist of the team defeating their biggest rival North Carolina Central by a blowout score of 67-27, and reaching the post season for the fourth time winning a bid at the 2013 WNIT. The MEAC Rookie of the Year Honoree, Eboni Ross, was honored at 6 of the 9 weekly conferences, which is a great accomplishment for the first year star. The Aggies program has been to three WNIT's and one NCAA tournament in the last six years. The team reached the semifinals of the MEAC tournament for the first time in four years. The team not only shined on the basketball court but in the community as well. The team supported National Breast Cancer Awareness Month by participating in the Women's Only 5k Race at Cone Health Women's Hospital, showing courage and diversity as they dedicated some of their time to serve the community.

The spring semester is a time for celebration beginning with MLK, Jr. holiday celebrations. Students participated in community engagement projects in the local elementary schools and with not-for-profit organizations in the community on January 21, 2013. The holiday is considered "time on" for service to others. Later in the week a commemorative program was held in collaboration between NC A&T and UNC-G. Dick Gregory was the guest speaker. The NC A&T Fellowship Gospel Choir sang at the commemorative program and later in the week gave a concert in honor of the occasion. The celebration continued with February 1 Observances which recognizes the accomplishments of the NC A&T Four and the "Sit-In" movement. For Black History Month Student Government Association and the Gentlemen of the Shop presented various programs throughout the month. The first program held February 5th was titled, "The Beginning". This program consisted of encouraged Aggies to take pride in being African American. It was an educational program that informed the audience of the culture of the motherland. February 12th provided students information about stereotypes the African American culture faces. "The Enlightenment" allowed the audience to ask themselves, "Why do we still entertain crabs in a barrel?" The last program for the week was a discussion panel on how campus can be changed for the better. Overall, the Black History Month programs were powerful yet entertaining. "The Black History programs provided a great avenue for our students to learn more about the African-American story, It helped put our lives into perspective , in order to know where we're going we must know we must know where we came from" says Canisha Turner a Junior from Waverly, Virginia.

AGGIE BASEBALL

Source: NC A&T Sports Information

The Aggie baseball team closed out the regular season with a tough loss, seeing a ninth-inning lead slip away for the second straight game as they fell 7-5 to Savannah State on May 10th. The team made a come back when they opened up the 2013 MEAC Tournament with a 16-11 victory in 13 innings against No. 1 seeded Delaware State at the campus of Norfolk State five days later. The Aggies were going for their fourth title in program history, and first since 2005. Individual team members also thrived this year. Shortstop Luke Tendler was named MEAC Player of the Week on March 7. Tendler was named first-team All-MEAC. He is tied for the nation's lead in doubles with 25. Senior first baseman Kelvin Freeman was named MEAC Player of the Year. Freeman was selected in the 17th round, 498th overall, by the Chicago Cubs in the 2013 MLB First-Year Player Draft. Freeman is the first A&T player drafted since Xavier Macklin was selected in 2011 by the Oakland Athletics, and is the seventh Aggie player drafted since 2002. A&T has had 15 total players drafted since the MLB First-Year Player Draft began in 1965.

North Carolina A&T hosted the 2012 and 2013 MEAC Outdoor Track and Field Conference championships at Irwin Belk Track. Jenea McCammon won the conference title in the women's 400 meter hurdles, and the NC A&T men finished second at the conference meet (2012). The women finished third.

Fifteen Aggies (men and women combined) qualified for NCAA Regionals in 2012. The men's 4x100 meter relay team (Earl House, Darryl Williams, Jarrell Elliott and Torrance Womack) qualified for NCAA Nationals. Sprinter Jarrell Elliott qualified for the U.S. Olympic trials. Jumper Jared Baldwin was named the inaugural MEAC Man of the Year in July, 2012.

NC A&T had two athletes compete at the 2013 NCAA East Division I Track and Field Preliminary Round which was held at NC A&T's Irwin Belk Track.

The Aggies finished the season 2-13 overall with a 1-5 MEAC mark. Due to a decrease in players due to injuries, it was a challenging season for the Aggies. Jayla Scott made it to the B Division semifinals round at the 12th Annual HBCU National Tennis Championships in Georgia during the fall. The team has five outgoing seniors and four freshmen, thus making this season a time of transition for them. The Aggie freshmen had plenty of playing time to provide experience and growth for their future seasons.

RHA STEP OFF

By Kelyn Greene

The RHA dorm step show kicked off the Aggie Fest Festivities, taking place in Corbett Sports Center, students came out to support their roommates, friends, and resident halls on Monday, April 8th. Throughout the duration of the show students cheered on their friends and held their posters representing their dorms with their names written across them. The host Christina Evans and Aurielle Lowry, were very interactive with the audience, hyping students up asking them to shout out hometowns, area codes, and classes. Couture Productions performed during intermission using a combination of dancing, spoken word, and modeling. Finally, as the show came to an end audience members were at the edges of their seats waiting for the winners to be announced, Barbee Hall took home first place, Aggie Suites grabbed second place, and the divas of Curtis Hall claimed third place.

SAVINGS SHOWDOWN & SPIRITUAL FAIR

By Raven Davis

The Spiritual Enlightenment Fair was a new addition to Aggie Fest. It was held during class time in the quad which produced a large crowd. Student development did a great job hosting this event; the audience was intrigued while being simultaneously educated. "It was a great addition to Aggie Fest, it was a successful attempt to add diversity to campus while educating students" says Dorian Davis a Sophomore Public Relations student from Raleigh, North Carolina. The fair informed Aggies about the various faiths and religions that exist and also the importance of diversity of faiths that are present in society.

AGGIES & POETS

By Kelyn Greene

The "Aggies and Poets" showcase, took place in Stallings Ballroom on April 9th, 2013, with a set up and stage resembling a theater front with the headline lined in lights reading "Apollo: Welcome Aggie Poets." The line outside of Stallings started around 7pm and the crowd became very chaotic and the entire Union Memorial Lobby was packed with Aggie Students who were eager to see the show. With Stallings Ballroom only able to hold 300 students things did get hectic. Brandon Brockington, founder of GT (Grand Trilogy) from Baltimore, Maryland opened the show with a spoken word piece that left the crowd mind blown with his sophisticated metaphors and deep thought. Aggies and Poets had a great turn out. As more students are turned down every year due to lack of space, Aggies and Poets will soon need to seek a larger venue.

RHA "THE BLACKOUT"

By Raven Davis

The Resident Hall Association presented the Bowling Black Out, an RSVP event, for the first time during Aggie Fest 2013. It was a hit, bringing out about 500 Aggies, eager to participate. Students were provided transportation to the facility. RHA provided endless opportunities for fun during the Bowling Black Out. Students were given an unlimited amount of games for bowling, food was provided and upon arrival students were given a card with a ten dollar balance allowing them to play games in the arcade including laser tag "This event was a great experience and a new addition to Aggie Fest. It allowed a chance for students to travel off campus and fellowship together through bowling, laser tag and free food!" says Dorian Davis a Sophomore English student from Raleigh, North Carolina. Bowling Black Out broke the tradition of the usual Aggie Fest events, but students loved it.

SUAB BLOCK PARTY

By Kelyn Greene

This year, our Aggie Fest planning committee switched things up on us. What we know as the “block party,” traditionally taking place in front of Brown bookstore during welcome week, was held in the Holland bowl. Students gathered around watching A&T showcase some of its talents. A couple local entertainers performed, Verge-modeling troupe did their thing, and the Greeks’ definitely showed out and represented their organizations to the fullest. “It was the best one I’ve been to since being at the T. A lot of people showed up and showed out” says Kristian Dixon a Sophomore Accounting student from Clinton, Maryland. The crowd was hype as the DJ played some of their favorite tunes. The Williams Dining Hall closed its facility and set up a large tent outside for the students to eat out on this nice day, making the block party similar to a cook out.

GREEK STROLL OFF

By Raven Davis

The seventh annual Iota Phi Theta Stroll off attracted a large crowd filling both levels of Corbett Sports Center. The event did not begin until 7pm however, people formed a line at 5:30pm to see the show. All active divine nine organizations on NC A&T's campus participated this year bringing Greek alumni back and newly initiated Greeks out to compete and watch the show. Because Greek campus presentations had just occurred, the excitement was at an all-time high with students eager to represent their new organization. Each organization competed in three different rounds with two of the rounds being pre prepared to a certain song. For round three the judges picked a song for the teams to compete to. Top songs played on the radio were used during the competition getting the crowd up to sing along and dance. "I thought all the organizations did a great job representing themselves" says Sophomore Amber Woodard an Elementary Education student from Raleigh, North Carolina. For entertainment during the intermission the spring 2013 new initiates of the Alpha Phi Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. strolled to their signature song, Bow Down by Beyoncé. There were also performances in between rounds by Alpha Phi Omega. The Beta Epsilon Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha took home the first place award for the fraternities, while the Alpha Mu Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta won first place for sororities.

SGA ELECTIONS

By Raven Davis

The quad area was an obstacle course during student SGA elections, as campaigning was in full effect. SGA elections is a time when students are very enthusiastic because they believe their candidate is best fit for one of the most important leadership positions on campus. Students running for positions were eager to inform others about what they promise to do for them in the upcoming school year. Campaign teams assisted them in holding signs and passing out goods to ensure their candidate got the vote. Tiffany Carson SGA Secretary elect for the 2013-2014 school term said "I enjoyed the competition with my peers. I am excited to be a part of the Turner administration." Everyone was excited and the passion behind every campaign was evident, Aggies were dedicated to getting their candidate in office, campaigning during all of their free time. Alexis Cash SGA Treasurer elect said, "Having a campaign team was essential to my campaign, I appreciate people believing in me and my vision."

CAREER & LEADERSHIP

By Mian Cash

College is an opportunity given to students to help ignite them in their success. This year's leadership conference helped students come into realization that with success a difficult journey follows, and every encounter experienced counts. NC A&T has been one of the few campuses, for seven years running, to provide an all expense paid leadership development conference for its future leaders. The Leadership development conference provided Aggies with a full day of informative sessions and etiquette training workshops. During the informative session workshops, the conference hosted a number of speakers from various companies. Mr. Scott Lilly, Vice President of Talent Acquisition and Campus Relations for the Thurgood Marshall Fund, had the privilege of being a keynote speaker with a message entitled, "How to Make the Little Things Count." As the conference closed, students left with an unforgettable experience, ready to challenge the business world. Aggies like Amber Urooj, a graduate student in the School of Counseling, were able to network with professionals and learn about the changing dynamics of career development. Amber said, "One of the best things I learned, was using the do's and don'ts of social media in terms of career development... this conference is something that each Aggie should attend at least once, there is so much to learn about yourself as well as others."

The senior art show was a big day for the senior art class, it was their day to shine. Preparing for the show took a lot of hard work and team effort. Cheyenne Lowe a Senior Visual Art and Design student says, "This event was a lot of hard work I was here until 2am, but I am satisfied with the outcome." The senior art class displayed their art in Dudley's art gallery for everyone to see. Guests came for one thing, to see the product of the hard work and effort the students put in throughout the year. But before they could tour the gallery there was an opening ceremony. Roymico Carter, the Director of Art, spoke to the crowd and gave the senior class kind and encouraging words to take with them as they embark on their next journey in life. Following the ceremony friends and family were allowed to tour the gallery which consisted of students art on the first and second floor. Cadell Lyles an Elementary Education student from Winston-Salem, North Carolina favorite art on display was "Night at Petra by Marc Graham. Cadell said, "This piece stood out to me because of the color choice" and described the work as "exhilarating and inspirational."

The NC A&T theater department performed "Dearly Departed," during the week of April 19th. The production was a reenactment of the typical family struggle but in the end they all reunite for the greater good of everyone. In the play the family comes together to plan a funeral for a departed loved one. The play was full of emotion, pain, heartache, comedy, and plenty of drama. Kierra Gary played a major role in the play, acting as Lucille Turpin, the daughter in law to the departed loved one whose struggles to conceive a child with her husband. Kiara gave us a little insight on her experience on stage, stating, "Being that this was my first play, everything was new to me so this was a wonderful learning experience. I became more confident on stage by battling with stage fright and I bonded with people who shared the same interests and goals as me. We all had a love for theatre."

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The aims of higher education are to aid an individual in realizing his/her potential and becoming an effective member of society. The means to this end are independence of thought, active awareness and participation in various academic pursuits. The individual is the center of learning. Therefore, these aims have meaning only insofar as, they relate to the individual. Whatever is done in the educational community must be evaluated in terms of the effect on the student and his/her learning process. The Student Government Association, as the representative of the student community, must be committed to these goals of higher education in order to justify its existence.

To attain this purpose, the SGA must assume the following responsibilities:

- Create an atmosphere of freedom that allows the student to move beyond the limits of traditional interests by being a creative and contributing individual
- Aid in a meaningful interpretation of the concept of the university community.
- Provide opportunities for each student to participate in activities that develop and realize potentialities
- Create awareness of national and international affairs and of their significance for the individual

Emmanuel Johnson, a senior Computer Engineering major, was born in Monrovia, Liberia, but raised in New York. He is honored to be the first recipient of the Fulbright Scholarship at North Carolina A&T State University. Emmanuel believes, "It is my responsibility to excel and do the best that I can so that I not only represent A&T in a positive manner but also be a light bearer to all future students matriculating on this road to success."

Q: What does being a recipient of the Fulbright Scholarship mean to you?

A: Being a Fulbright recipient means that I am held to a different standard. It is also an honor, which has shown me that my hard work hasn't gone unnoticed. The Fulbright has confirmed my belief in my abilities and has helped boost my confidence. Although I have never really doubted myself, this award confirms that I can do anything I set my mind to, even if it is something that hasn't been accomplished before.

Q: How has A&T prepared you for filling this scholarship's requirements?

A: A&T has prepared me in a variety of ways to meet the Fulbright requirements. Fulbright looks for students who are not only academically gifted, but also possess the leadership capabilities to be an ambassador of the United States while participating in the Fulbright program.

The academic rigor of my major, Computer Engineering, has pushed me to think outside of the box and develop those critical thinking skills. Through late night study groups, projects, and tutoring others, I gained a tremendous amount of knowledge in my chosen academic discipline. Having confronted Murphy's law several times over the course of my academic career, I have learned how to network and realized that sometimes you need to lean on others for assistance.

Outside of the classroom, A&T has offered me various chances to develop my leadership skills. Through my matriculation, I have served on a variety of boards and been apart of different initiatives to address many of the problems facing students at A&T. This has helped me learn how to work with different types of people, lead a group of my peers and utilize critical thinking skills in a whole new manner. Some of the positions I have had the opportunity to serve in are the Chapter President of the Beta Epsilon chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., Region II Academic Excellence Chair of the National Society of Black Engineers (NSBE) and Programs Chair of the A&T chapter of NSBE, and I also served as a member of the Chancellor's Academic Review Commission.

Q: When you first came into A&T, was it where you visioned yourself being? If not where?

A: When I first came to A&T, this is not where I envisioned myself being. I knew from day one that I did want to excel both inside and outside of the classroom, but I did not truly know what that would mean for me. I decided to take it one day at a time and do the best that I could in everything I put my hands on. I figured, although I didn't know what was in store for me, by doing my best I would subsequently come out on top. I saw myself graduating amongst the top students in my class, but never as someone who would make history as the first Fulbright recipient at A&T.

Q: What do you hope to learn from your experience / participation in the Fulbright Scholar program?

A: I look forward to submerging myself in the United Kingdom's culture and in the end gain an appreciation for their culture and customs while understanding how we differ from them. I would like to travel and visit the different countries that encompass the UK. Inside of the classroom, I hope to continue my level of excellence and prove that Aggies can compete no matter where they go in the world.

Through his experience as a Fulbright Scholar studying abroad, Emmanuel plans to gain a global perspective and understand how he can have an impact on a global level.

Reginald Johnson, Mister Agricultural and Technical State University for the 2012-2013 school year, not only served as a phenomenal Mister to our institution but he made history. He says, "I was determined to return home to campus victorious with the title of Mr. HBCU." Reginald returned to Aggie land with every title under his belt setting the bar high for future Misters.

Q: What will you miss most about North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University?

A: Well, that is easy, the students. The students are the most important factor because being an ambassador, I would not thrive or excel without the joy and excitement of the students. They encourage me and inspire me daily to always uphold my title as best fit. Without the love and support of the students I don't think a lot of the student leaders would be able to get through the day on top of dealing with faculty, administration, the responsibility and stress of the job. We are students first, and to have our peers respect us as adults and an overseer of them is very dear and special to me.

Q: What were your preparation methods for the pageant?
A: I was very focused on making that week very effective and assuring each male walked away informed. I didn't have a lot of time to prepare for the pageant because a lot of my focus was very much so on this week. Upon standing in front of him and answering each question, he would then give me advice on how to improve my responses and really bring things home. Also, we went shopping for suits to guarantee I presented myself well. For my talent everyone knows that Reggie dances around campus, I am a theater major so the creativity and the talent portion was the easiest part. Everything else came from years of experience. I was Mr. Dudley High School, the first Mr. Freshman, Mr. Sophomore, and of course Mr. A&T.

Q: What does it mean to accomplish something so great such as winning the title of Mister Historically Black Colleges and Universities and making history for North Carolina A&T?
A: I didn't want to just go and win for myself but I wanted to bring this title back to A&T because it hadn't been done before. I wanted to make the undone reality. I am the type of person who loves to be among other leaders and men who are doing positive things with themselves as well as for the community. This was the most joy I got out of competing because it was a chance for the contestants and I to just to compare interests as far as what the necessities were at our different HBCUs and the relevance and importance of each our institutions. These conversations assisted in the betterment of the African American community.

Ja Von Robinson, a Social Work student from Durham, North Carolina, has been very involved during his time here A&T. His work here has not gone unnoticed and he has been named the "Unsung Hero" for the 2013-2014 school year.

Q: What does being nominated as the unsung hero mean to you?

A: Being nominated as the unsung hero shows that I am being recognized for my works and not looking for a reward in return. Being myself and giving my best to others shows my AGGIEPRIDE.

Q: Describe your time here at A&T.

A: My time here at North Carolina A&T State University has been a long, but eventful. When I came here, I did not have any family nor friends, but I made the best of it and let my true colors shine and when I say colors I mean my Aggie Blue and Gold came out. I have met many people and brought plenty of smiles to many faces. I have spoken on behalf of students, served on many advisory boards, and served in the BIG 5 (with the exception to Greek life, I served as their in-house photographer). I have grown professionally and gain a lot of experiences and many golden opportunities like serving to select our Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs, many Directors in Student Affairs Division, writing grants within the Division of Student Affairs, and meeting our First Lady Michelle Obama for graduation last year.

Q: What does Aggie Pride mean to you?

A: Aggie Pride will always mean what the Aggie Pride compact says, "Achieving Great Goals In EVERYTHING Producing Renowned Individuals DEDICATED to EXCELLENCE." Former Miss North Carolina A&T State University 2007-2008 Candace Michelle Johnson once said "Aggie Pride is more than a saying and a chat at sporting events, it's a lifestyle." I wrote this quote on my Instagram "Aggie Pride is more than a saying, it's a lifestyle."

Ja'Von believes, "You do not need a title to make a difference you just need to find your Aggie Pride and that consists of having values, commitment, lifelong learning, service, respect, confidence, and most importantly being a part of this university's legacy."

A: My biggest motivation is my mother. Although it seems like a cliché answer, my mom has always been my biggest cheerleader, always telling me that I can be great, and remains as the one constant source of positivity and faith in my life. Besides my mother, my inspiration comes from the people that I mentor and call my little brothers or sisters. They inspire me every day to keep pushing for success, so that I can continue to inspire them in return.

Q: What are your career goals? What steps do you plan on taking in order to achieve them?

A: I have numerous career goals that range from owning my own non-profits dedicated towards educating and rehabilitating prisoners and advocating the study of liberal and culture arts in the lives of young black men, to working in international relations.

Q: Often times when you're seen on campus you're dressed up, Are there any particular reasons for that?

A: I choose to dress up around campus because it reflects my style and my personality. I also feel that first impressions are very important; therefore, I am always prepared to look my best.

Q: What advice have you been given that guides you?

A: The best advice that I have been given is to always provide service to others. The one quote that I live by is "Success is the path that we follow; service is the light that we leave behind..." I believe that in order to achieve success, you must serve others that is why I live to mentor.

Upon graduating with a B.S. in Journalism and Mass Communications with a concentration in Public Relations, Dorian plans on pursuing a master's degree in Non-Profit management. Patrick L. Moseley is a senior, Political Science student with a minor in Philosophy from East Atlanta. Patrick is a Marine Corps veteran with a passion for doing all he can to help others which has been exemplified during his time at A&T.

Q: Which of your accomplishments have meant the most to you, and why?

A: My recent selection to speak to the North Carolina General Assembly during this year's HBCU Lobby Day on the behalf of my university and its Political Science Department. I choose this moment because I was selected to provide the closing address; of all prepared statements, mine was considered the most poignant. This meant a lot to me because it can be difficult to find your place within student life, as a full-time non-traditional student; however, the response I received from the other university students, state representatives, Lobby Day organizers, and the media was the culminating welcome to academia that I have long strived for. This was my most public accomplishment to date; for me, it could not have been on a greater stage.

Q: What are your career goals?

A: I was recently selected into North Carolina Central University School of Law. I am more than likely going to pursue a career in politics supported by practicing law.

Q: Describe your time at A&T.

A: My time at A&T was rewarding and fulfilling. A&T has equipped me with the academic tools necessary to excel in law school, I am truly grateful for that.

Q: How has being involved on campus impacted you?

A: I have enjoyed my time here and the relationships that I have developed (students, administrators, faculty and staff). Being able to contribute to the student life without prejudice or disdain as a non traditional student was a contributing factor that greatly enhanced my ability to matriculate through the university.

He says, "I feel that we are all in control of our own destiny and our decisions and more importantly actions will dictate our fate. No one can take that from us and do anything."

Q: How have your internships and co-ops prepared you for the workforce?

A: Being a Fortune 500 company, Cisco has prepared me for the workforce by exposing me to Corporate America. My time with them allowed me to work on my formal and informal communication skills in a work environment. Effective communication is a big piece when it comes to being successful at work. I am an IT Analyst with them and I work on Data Visualization for planning purposes.

Q: Which of your internships/co-ops has been your favorite? Why?

A: Cisco was actually the only company I interned with. This summer is my third time with them and I love it. I like their culture and the kind of people that they hire. Everyone is helpful, kind, and smart. My team is awesome and I received a very warm welcome when I returned so again the culture at Cisco is great.

Q: What advice do you have for students trying to secure an internship or co-op?

A: My advice is to start in the classroom. Relationships with professors are cool and everything but companies are most impressed with a high GPA. Make your GPA your main focus and it will definitely pay off. Another thing is you have to attend the career fair, fall and spring. These companies come with the sole purpose of giving us jobs and internships so to not show up is the same as not trying. Lastly talk to the companies and ask educated questions, do some research before you talk to their representatives and they will be impressed with whatever you know even if it's not a lot.

Q: How do you manage to stay on top of your grades and extracurricular activities?

A: Staying on top of my schoolwork and all of the clubs that I am a part of is easy for me it's just prioritizing. I make a calendar in my phone and follow it. I give myself a 30 minute reminder when I have class so I rarely miss it and as far as homework goes I schedule time to do each assignment the same way. Occasionally I will miss meetings with my clubs because I will forget so I make sure I set a reminder for everything because if I don't you will definitely catch me in my apartment just watching random movies(my biggest hobby.)

Q: What has been your inspiration to become an entrepreneur?

A: Growing up, my family member's were hustlers. Therefore, the trade of an entrepreneurship grew on me.

Q: When did you find passion for photography?

A: It has this charming aesthetic about it that is so minute and can literally provoke a huge and dramatic impact. It has the power to change the way you see life. The drama or emotion captured in the frame can virtually manifest itself and the way you see and respect people, or things. What a powerful and beautiful medium, don't you think?

Q: On campus you are know by Tristan Means, what is the meaning behind that name?

A: The meaning behind the name is to provide exceptional service and to evoke all the dreams of my clients allowing them to cherish creative photographs that will ultimately end up as a physical piece of memory. That's the way I pretty much try to brand myself.

Q: What do you enjoy about photography?

A: My photography is a way for me to express the candid and honest moments I capture in my life. Some showcase the explicit love affair I have with photography. Q: What inspired you to join the army?

A: My inspiration for joining the Army was the love I gained for the military through doing 4 years of ROTC in High School. There I excelled and found my true potential to be a leader.

Q: What is your advice for anyone considering going to the army?

A: My advice would be to look into National Guard and the Army Reserves before going right into Active Duty Army because a lot of people have a lot of civilian goals and opportunities that may be more easily attainable if that did Guard or Reserve because they only work one weekend out the month and three weeks in the summer which makes doing civilian duties that much more easier.

Q: What are your future plans as far as the army and school are concerned?

A: My future plans is to get my degree and utilize it to become an Army Officer. Also, I plan to make a career out of the Army and retire after 20+ years. Until then though I want to be the best leader and NCO possible by leading by example, and leading from the front.

Ron Broadway, the current coach for the A&T football team played football for the University of North Carolina for all four years of his undergrad career. One of his most cherished memories is when the team was crowned ACC champs of 1977. Broadway says, "It was a beautiful experience, a great time to grow up. The biggest thing I learned at this time was you can achieve a lot with good attitude and hard work."

Q: How did you get into coaching?

A: Growing up it was just something I always wanted to do, I remember as early as the sixth grade. The ability to compete, do things, and travel stood out to me and I knew coaching was something I was meant to do.

Q: As a coach, what is your philosophy, for example what do you emphasize most to the football players?

A: Doing the right thing and making good sound decisions is very important. It is easier to make wrong decisions on the field than it is to make the right decisions. The wrong decision could mess you up or even cause injury unto one of your teammates because you didn't think that action through.

Q: What changes have you administered to the North Carolina A&T State University's football program?

A: Quite a few actually, we encourage our guys to take pride in what they do and we push them harder in the academic field. We have witnessed an increase in class attendance and grades. Our coaching team implements academic meetings with the players once a week as well as daily study halls. Before the players would go to the study hall, sign in, and leave but now they actually go and stay due to the fact we have coaches go and monitor the sessions.

Michaela Gaddy is a sophomore from Raleigh, North Carolina. She is known around campus for her outstanding style.

1. What inspires your style?
I would definitely have to say Teyana Taylor & Va$htie . I love the fact that they can be themselves and not care what anyone has to say about them . They wear what they are comfortable in and they dress for themselves and not for anyone else . One day they dress like a boy and one day they can dress girly. They are versatile when it comes to fashion unlike others that are scared to dress outside of the box because they care what people think of them . That's what I love the most about them and that is what inspires my style and my individuality.

2. Where are your favorite places to shop?

My favorite places to shop are Urban Outfitters , Forever 21 , Online , Thrift Stores , and sometimes DTLR .

3. Describe your style. How does your style differ from others?

I would describe my style as very urban. My style is different from others because I try to wear things others are afraid to wear. I like to dress outside of the box, but not too crazy!

4. Do you follow trends? If so how do you stay up to date with them?

To a certain extent, yes but if I do follow trends I try to change them up & put my own twist to them. I stay up-to-date through tumblr and my favorite celebrities.

Shakia Jason, better known as Kia is a Senior , Physical Therapy student from Charlotte, North Carolina. Upon graduation she plans on attending graduate school and studying Physical Therapy. Although her major has nothing to do with fashion she has a passion for street wear and altering trends to fit her personality.

1.How would you describe your style & how does it differ from others?

I would like to describe my style as carefree. I really don't dress in one category of style. I wear whatever I want to for that day and it may differ from the previous day or the next day.

2.Who inspires your style ? What fashion icon(s) do you look up to?

Streetwear really describes my style. I like to look at what people are wearing on the streets of Charlotte, to the streets of NY, to the streets of Cali. I'm even intrigued by what people are wearing in Japan and London.

3.How do you stay up to date with trends? or Do you create your own?

I wish I was fly enough to create my own trends , but really I don't feel like I create my own trends however, I do feel like I am a one of the pioneers and I do help set off a few trends. It's a lot of things I see that me and a few others do first then later on down the line everyone doing it. But whatever the trend is I always keep a sense of myself or twist it with a little bit of my individuality with it.

4.Do you have a favorite brand if so what? Why?

I don't really have one favorite brand. I could list for days the brands that I like. I will say brands that attract me are brands that have a statement behind their clothing or brands with a meaning or purpose or even a good story. When exploring a new brand I like to read the background before I purchase.

Shakia believes that style and clothing are based off of expression and creativity. It shows who you are without using words. She makes sure whatever she is trying to articulate with her style is something positive.

Jamal Featherstone is a Visual Design Senior from Ahoskie, NC. He is the Vice President of Aggie Livewire and enjoys chilling and hanging out with his friends.

1. How would you describe your style? How does it differ from everyone else's?

Honestly, I don't know how I would describe my style in words. I never have a vision of what I want to wear I just put whatever I feel looks good and suits me for my mood of the day. I will take risks that will make people do a double take but also make them observe my looks.

2. How do you stay up to date with trends? Or do you create your own?

I do not follow new trends to the entirety. I sit and observe what everyone wears but I add my own special twist and changes to it. I design my own wardrobe based off of the things I see but how I believe it fits me. Like the saying goes, "its not what you wear, but how you wear it."

3. Which celebrity would you say describes your style best? Who is/are your fashion icons?

I can't give a name to anyone who describes my style except for Jamal Featherstone. No one knows my style, can depict my style, or change my style except Jamal. One fashion icon I can say I look to is Kanye West, simply because he is a risk taker. There is never a time when people don't think "What is Kanye going to wear next?" and I believe I give the same impression off.

Robert Bates is a Senior Visual Arts student from Charlotte, North Carolina. Robert's style is personality driven. The color and combinations he puts together are decided based on his mood. "When I'm feeling gloomy you can tell by my color choices." Along with being known around campus for his style he also is an Aggie Student Ambassador and served as a model and secretary for VERGE Modeling Troupe. During Robert's free time he loves to chill with friends and shop.

1. How would you describe your style? How does it differ from everyone else's?

My style represents my personality which is fun, loving, and adventurous. It also has a risky art background being that I am a visual arts student.

2. How do you stay up to date with trends? Or do you create your own?

I try to stay up to date with the trends; but I learn how those trends can fit into my wardrobe. When I learn if they fit into my style or wardrobe I then make them my own.

3. Which celebrity would you say describes your style best? Who is/are your fashion icons?

I would have to say Kanye West best describes my style and this is not because of what he wears; but because he is daring and takes risk with his style.

Bates says he admires the style of "Demi Moore, Zoe Saldana, and Pharrell Williams." Upon graduation he plans on using his eye for fashion along with his degree in Visual Arts to work for a magazine or publication.

Derrick Williams is a sophomore, studying Art from Henderson, North Carolina. He lives by the famous words of Albert Einstein, "I am enough of an artist to draw freely upon my imagination. Imagination is more important than knowledge. Knowledge is limited. Imagination encircles the world."

1. Who inspires your style?

When I was young my dad said, "Never dress for the person that you are but for the person that you want to become. Before anybody can ever judge you or have an opinion about you all they have to go off of is your appearance." My sense of style originated from my dad words. I wanted to dress like my pops.

2. Who do you consider fashion icons of this day in age?

People like Kanye West, Chris brown, Dwayne Wade, Miguel, André 3000, Wale, Fonsworth Bentley, Russell Westbrook, and Pharrell. If I had a girl fashion icon it would definitely have to be Rihanna.

3. How do you stay up to date with current trends or do you start your own?

Internet, magazines, T.V, people, really anything around me I use to keep up with what's relevant and what's not. It's times when I do follow a particular trend and it's time when I don't. If I'm doing anything, I'm doing it for me because I like it. I think in today's time it's easy to get caught up in the hype because it's comfortable. People should really be who they are, diversity makes the world grow.

4. Where are your favorite places to shop?

Before I got to college I didn't know what a thrift store was so when I started to thrift I didn't really like it at first honestly but over time I fell in love with it once I really understood the art of thrifting. Nevertheless, that's where I do a lot of my damage at now but if not at the thrift store I am at H&M man. Overall, I will shop from anywhere. If the piece of clothing looks good on me and the stitches line up correctly, I'm buying it.

Upon graduation Derrick wants to utilize all of his talents to start his own business which will include art, fashion, and a barbershop in one.

Tyler Jones is a junior Fashion Merchandising major from Littleton, North Carolina. She has obtained an internship with Natasha Morgan designer eyewear company and made a custom leather shirt for Que from Day 26. Tyler uses her passion for fashion and displays in her everyday attire and to progress in her college career.

1. How do you stay up with the newest trends? Or do you set your own?

I research, research, research. I'm constantly looking in consumer publications like Vogue, Elle, Glamour, Etc., or I browse their websites and other websites like WWD. These websites give me inspiration and I make it my own

2. You are known for taking regular garments and adding a twist to them, from where do you get these ideas?

They come from within, for example when I look at my sweats or my cargo's, I wish the bottom was tighter because to me it can give any look punk.

3. What are your plans to take your talents to the next level? What are your plans upon graduation?

As of right now I'm branding my talents, I'm putting what I can do out there to see the reaction I get! I have great things in writing for 2013 so you'll just have to wait and see.

4. Do you put a lot of thoughts into your outfits or does it come naturally? Being natural takes thought, it all embarks from your thought process ok how you interpret things! It goes upon how I'm feeling. Of course I don't sit for hours and say what can I do with this or how shall I wear that, that happens at the point of purchase, when I'm buying I say I can do this with that and so forth, but it may be months sometimes years before I wear something I bought the time just has to be right, what I wear is more less a feeling

Tyler says, "In order to come up with designs I naturally take into consideration everything around me on a day to day basis to help emphasize who I am when I put my outfits together!" When Tyler graduates she plans on moving to New York to pursue a career in fashion.

Kamaria Chanel Ellerbe, an Applied Engineering Technology student, was recently chosen to perform a spoken word piece at an A&T Four program, but is best known for her fashion sense, she says she always expresses her inner moods from her outward appearance.

1. What/ who inspires your style?
The louder my outfits are, the more thoughts and feelings are bogging through my head. Self-expression is really big to me; there was once a time when I didn't accept all my peculiarities. But I found my identity in Christ, so I really value self-expression. Why not glory through fashion, as an everyday expression of my gratitude for God, in grooming me into such a phenomenal young woman?

2. What is your favorite place to shop?
It's crazy how the thrift store became the mooove of the century. Being that my style was of an older crowd, I was hip to the thrift, or "t-store", at an early age. I also like town vintage spots and small business boutiques. They have the best kitschy accessories that can make your style POP!

3. What would you say sets your style apart from everyone else's?
It's a known fact - if you look good, you'll feel good. But for me, what I wear goes a tad bit deeper. It can be the BEST outfit in the world but if it can't exhort that positive feel to cheer me through the day, I won't be satisfied. I dress to express, not to impress. Also, if you look closely, you can probably derive about a ton of subliminals and metaphors from my outfits; I like to think of my body as a billboard. Question is, who and what are you representing?

Upon graduation, Kamaria plans to create her own eco friendly manufacturing industry - turning trash into treasure, by innovating discarded waste material from landfills and up-cycling them into fashion articles, automobile designs to tech savvy gadget patents and biodegradable products.

Van Gray III is a Sports Science and Fitness Management student from Miami, Florida. Outside of his love for fashion he participates in the "undisputed" traveling intramural basketball team and works for the Black Child Development Institute of Greensboro.

1. Who inspires your style? And whom do you consider fashion icons of this day in age?

As far as fashion is concerned, I am inspired by quite a few people from many different parts of the world. I am a subscriber to many fashion & style blogs from inside the US and a few European based. I take in everything. Following some of these blogs has allowed me to see and discover many fashion icons that aren't quite as famous in the US. Some of the key individuals that I look up to in the fashion & style realm are Kanye West, Brad Goreski, Taz Arnold, Lapo Elkann, Ugo Mozie, Lino Leluzzi, and Angel Ramos.

2. Describe your style and how it differs from others?

My style is versatile. I can never quite describe it in its entirety. But a word I sometimes use is "Simplicated," which is my way of describing my balance of simple yet complicated attire. I am a lover of monochromatic ensembles, but I also love to add color. For example, I may wear all black five days straight and end the weekend with colorful color blocking. I like to keep people guessing.

I pride myself in having a versatile wardrobe and style. I like to tell people "If people know how you will dress before you arrive, you are doing something wrong". You never know what you going get when it comes to my sense of style. I am a lover of high-fashion pieces and vintage gear, but I have many different types of clothing. I like to mix them all on a daily basis. My daily look can be as simple as a t-shirt, jeans and sneakers or as serious as a suit, tie, and hard-bottom dress shoes. Although I would say that I am most connected to and known for my semi-casual looks, I really enjoy mixing up my look.

4. Where are you favorite places to shop?

"Anywhere with a cash register." That's the God honest truth. My personal favorite & most frequent place of choice is Saks Fifth Avenue, a high-end department store, but I love shopping anywhere. I frequent a few high-end retailers, but truly love to shop at thrift, vintage, and consignment shops as well. There are days I may have on $300 Italian loafers on with a $4 dollar blazer purchased from Goodwill. Growing up, one of my mom's favorite hobbies was to thrift shop. She brought me up going to consignment and thrift stores. Almost every weekend my mom and I would get dressed and go to The Faith Farm, which was a nearby mega thrift store in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Thrift shopping just stuck with me ever since. In addition to Saks and Design Archives, I also enjoy online shopping. Some of my favorite online retailers are SSENSE.COM, ASOS.com, Topman.com, Fatfetch.com, and YOOX.com.

Van lives by the quote "You never get a second chance to make a first impression" – Will Rogers which is why he is always dressed his best.

One of NASA's rovers landed on Mars August 5th, 2012. It is the largest rover to ever be sent to outer space; it is about the size of a small car. The name of the rover is very fitting, Curiosity. The rover is on a mission to discover whether or not life could survive on Mars. Curiosity landed in an area of Mars called Gale Crater. The rover is ordered to study the terrain in an area named Glenelg. The rover is also working to see if life ever lived on Mars and if water or plants were once there. It is expected that the rover will be on Mars for about 2 years; this project is expected to cost 2.5 billion dollars.

In a very populated country, electricity is very essential. The India power outage was the biggest one in history; it put about 670 million people lives to an abrupt stop. Power grids stopped working and effected people and business for about 2,000 miles. To make it worse, the government did not know what caused the outage, although they were the ones who took the blame. Some possible reasons for the power outage include, the grid being over worked, due to a recent shortage of rain; because of the little rain, farmers had to pump more water onto their farm lands. Often times the power grids in India are pushed to their limits because the production of electricity isn't keeping up with the population growth. Citizens were very disappointed, pointing the finger at the government, saying it was a lack of planning and management on the governments end.

The Galaxy S3 had sold thirty million units within 150 days, while the iPhone 5 had only sold five million units. That being said, many in the technology world are saying that the iPhone 5 is falling behind in features that consumers want. The battle will continue on, but for now, Samsung Galaxy S3 wins the battle.

NY BANS LARGE SODAS

New Yorkers can kiss their oversized drinks bye bye, New York's very own mayor, Michael Bloomberg, announced he is banning large sugary drinks including sodas and other highly caffeinated drinks. Food carts, movie theaters, restaurants, delis, and more are no longer allowed to sell overly sweetened beverages over the size of sixteen ounces, which will cause a large dent in their pockets. This ban excludes coffees, diet sodas, fruit juices, and dairy based drinks such as milkshakes but this is still not good news to those who need their large coke or mountain dew as a pick-me-up in the afternoon. The effort in this ban is to reduce obesity, a nationwide problem, that needs to be taken under control. Here at NCAT we enjoy our large Sweet Teas from McCallisters and Mcdonalds, as well as our huge late night fountain drinks from Cookout.

Good news! We survived 21 December 2012, which was supposed to be the end of the world according to the Mayan Empire's Calendar. Scholars from multiple disciplines quickly dismissed predictions. Professional Mayanist scholars stated that to no extent the Mayan accounts are accurate with their elementary astronomical observations. Students here at North Carolina A&T had fun cracking jokes on the doomsday via Twitter and Instagram with hilarious pictures and tweets. While others such as sophomore, criminal justice major Alexis McIntyre didn't think twice about the false predictions. She says, "As a strong believer in Christ, I think the Mayans ended the calendar at 2012 because it was a good ending period. I feel as though God is going to come when he is ready and for non-believers that was a raw prediction." December 21st turned out to be just another school day here at North Carolina A&T State University.

There was thirteen seconds between the explosions which killed three people and injured 264 people. The FBI began their investigation on April 18, releasing pictures of the suspects who they later discovered to be brothers, Dzhokhar and Tamerlan Tsarnaev Chechen. While the F.B.I were searching for the two suspects the surrounding towns were told to stay in place and all public transportation was suspended and Dzhokhar was found hiding in a residents boat. Rutgers Men's basketball coach, Mike Rice, was fired after being seen on camera "hitting, kicking, and taunting players with anti-gay slurs at practice". The coach was fired while under contract with the university. However, he was suspended from practices after his unlawful acts were exposed. Strangely, during Rice's three years coaching at Rutgers, ESPN aired numerous clips of the coach firing basketballs at the players, hitting them, and grabbing the players by their jerseys and yelling offensive slurs. The University reached a $475,000 settlement agreement, which will compensate for his last 2 years of his 5 year contract with the University. According to his contract the university owed the coach over 1 million dollars for the next 2 years but President Robert Barchi claimed that he would not approve a hefty payout to the disgraced coach. Rutgers University took the best actions in dismissing the coach because of safety concerns regarding students.

On May 6th, three women and a child were rescued from a home in Cleveland Ohio after being held captive for over 10 years. Ariel Castro, a sex addict, who abused them and kept them contained in his home, is held responsible for this unfortunate event. Michelle Knight disappeared at the age of 21 in 2002, Amanda Berry disappeared in 2003 at the age of 16, and Georgina Dejesus disappeared in 2004 at the age of 14. During the time of captivity, Amanda Berry was impregnated by Castro. Fortunately, one of doors inside the home was left unlocked and Berry began to scream to try and catch the attention of a neighbor. Unfortunately that neighbor, Angel Cordero, spoke very little English and could not communicate well with Berry. Soon, another neighbor, Charles Ramsey, joined Cordero at the house's front door during the rescue effort and the two heroes teamed up and kicked through the bottom of the storm door, which was reportedly "heavily bolted". Upon the women's rescue the police were notified and all of the women returned to their homes after being admitted into hospitals for check ups. Castro was then arrested, and may be sentence with the death penalty. One of the rescuers, Charles Ramsey, will receive "free burgers for life" after he describes dropping his "Big Mac" sandwich and running to help, upon hearing one of the victims screaming. Not every day people step out of their boundaries to partake in outrageous situations, luckily these two rescuers did.
